

At 92, he still works 7 days a week

Updated June 12, 2016 8:43 AM

By Victor Ocasio victor.ocasio@newsday.com

UVPM; 2,510,435

Bill Greiner, seen on Tuesday, June 7, 2016, is president and co-founder of industrial real estate brokerage Greiner-Maltz. He says even at 92, he has no plans of calling it quits. (Credit: Newsday / John Paraskevas)

Bill Greiner, president and co-founder of industrial brokerage Greiner-Maltz Co., says he hasn't taken a vacation since the 1950s, and he likes it that way.

At 92, the Roslyn resident has no plans to retire, and continues to work seven days a week. Monday to Thursday he goes to the Plainview office of the company he started in 1953 with his business partner, the late Richard Maltz; Friday...